

PROFILE OF STUDENT WITH DUAL ASSIGNMENTS IN COLLEGE AND WORK

Ramdan Homaedi

Abstract

Higher education is an institution that formally has the duty and responsibility to prepare students in accordance with educational goals. College schools require a large amount of money compared to schools at the lower education level, so that many students have to work to meet the costs of their education.

The absence of expertise in dividing time between working and completing the thesis can result in academic procrastination. The aim of the researcher is to determine the level of procrastination of students who study while working and also the impact of procrastination attitudes.

The research conducted by this author includes qualitative research. In the process of collecting data, the author uses the method of observation, interviews, and documentation. Furthermore, data analysis is carried out by organizing the data into several categories, describing it into units and drawing conclusions.

Based on the results of research and discussion, it can be concluded that students who have dual assignments in college while working are required to have expertise in dividing time, besides that motivation from the closest people is also needed so that the lecture process runs smoothly.
