This study uses a quantitative descriptive correlational approach with data analysis through prerequisite tests including normality tests, hypothesis testing using moment product correlation test. Data collection methods in this study used questionnaires and observations. The subjects in this study were class XI students of Muhammadiyah 1 Sumenep High School.

The results showed the calculation of normality test data obtained asymp values. Sig. (2-tailed) = 0.023 < 0.05, which means the data distribution is not normally distributed. The product moment correlation test results obtained Sig. (2-tailed) = 0.000 < 0.05 and Pearson Correlation value = 1.000 which means there is a significant relationship and has a strong level of influence then  $H_0$  is rejected and  $H_a$  is accepted, which means there is an influence of group guidance on the assertive ability of students of Muhammadiyah 1 Sumenep High School.
