This thesis aims to reveal the implementation of the planting of Pancasila values through scout extracurricular activities in the Madrasah Tsanawiyah Husnul Khatimah and the obstacles faced.

This study uses a qualitative approach with a case study model. The m ethods used in digging data include interviews, observation and documentation. Data were analyzed by data reduction, data display, and verification.

The results of the study show that the implementation of the Pancasila value planting is integrated directly into the scout activities which lead to the values contained in the dasa dharma pruka which include: a). Faith and piety to God Almighty, b). Love of nature and fellow humans; c). Love of the homeland and nation; d). Discipline, courage and loyalty; e). Mutual help; f). Responsible and trustworthy; g). Clear in thinking, saying, and acting; i). Savings, careful and simple; and J). Diligent and skilled. The implementation of Pancasila values integrated in scout values was carried out in several ways, including congregation habituation activities, United Nations (Line) Training, Campgrounds, Natural Exploration, Night Devotionals, Raising and social services, and games packed with outbound and race.

The obstacles in the development of Pancasila values through Scout extracurricular activities include funding, students consider Scouts as a routine activity similar to other activities and parents' awareness of the importance of Scouts. To overcome this problem, MTs Scouts Husnul Khatimah carried out contributions as sincerely as possible and often provided information to students and parents about the importance of Scouts.
