

Fathinil, Umanah. 2020. Teacher Strategies In Instilling Moral And Ethical Value
In Grade II SDN Pabian III Sumenep.

Keywords: Cultivating moral values and ethics, Education, Teachers, Strategy.

ABSTRAC

In the world of education the words moral and ethics are certainly no stranger to those who enjoy education in the world. as we know education is a science that must be possessed by everyone without exception, in the realm of education a teacher would already know his duties and authority as an educator and educators also of course know his duty to be a student. This study aims at how a teacher must have a strategy or a special way so that the inculcation of moral and ethical values can be accepted by students, understood by students and applied in daily life. If the moral and ethical values carried out by a teacher can be carried out well, then of course it will produce students with character.

This research is a qualitative study, the subjects of this study are the guardians of class II, principals and students of SDN Pabian III Sumenep. Data collection is done by observation, interviews and documentation. Data analysis is done by selecting the main points from the data that has been obtained, then presented in the form of descriptions and the like which are then concluded in order to more easily understand the results of research.

Therefore, the strategy and application of Pabian III Elementary School teachers are very good because, their strategy to package morals and ethics is something that is easy for students to understand by always giving real examples in everyday life and can certainly apply it in social life. In this case, the aim and desire of an educator is to create a good generation, not only good in terms of learning material in books alone, but what is very important is to make students understand that moral and ethical values are very important in social life, and it is very apply anywhere.